

Iron Ore Company of Canada

Emergency Mine Response Team

Primary Role of the Emergency Mine Response Team

- All team members are trained to increase proficiency in dealing with many forms of emergencies across the operation.
 - The team will act as primary response providers in their assigned work areas to assist the Emergency & Security Services Department in the event of an emergency.
 - The Emergency Mine Response Team will help control the effect of an emergency incident whether it involves people, property and or the environment.
-

Core Goals

- ❖ Emergency Mine Response Team (EMRT) is more closely aligned with the commitment, dedication and professionalism of volunteer emergency services.
 - ❖ This program relies on the cooperative and collaborative effort of our employees, management and various members of the community.
-

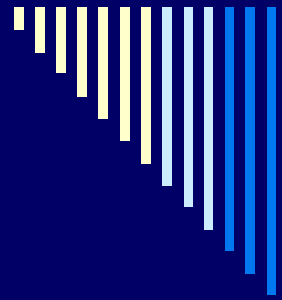

Core Goals

- Develop mutual aid agreements with other mines in the province and local emergency services agencies.
 - Incorporate EMRT group with the Disaster Management & Recovery teams in house and the community.
-

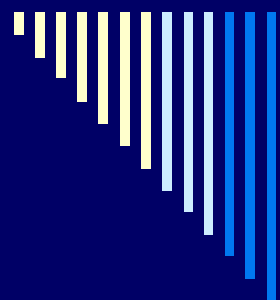

Advantages of in House Teams

- ❑ Members are advocates for safety & emergency preparedness in their work areas.
 - ❑ Training is provide by IOC's in house paid Emergency & Security services team.
 - ❑ Each member of the team brings their own expertise and knowledge of the equipment, and hazards in their work area.
-

Advantages of in House Teams

- Individual members have been involved in various Risk assessments, improving aspects of emergency preparedness.
- Training has been tailored to IOC's facilities allowing the use of underground rescue equipment in all areas.

Training

- Training will be coordinated and provided by the Emergency & Security Service Officers and in some instances by external professionals.
- Once members are trained they will be required to attend one 12 hour training session a month.
- Monthly training will help members maintain and practice their skills and consist of simulated fires, rescues and medical situations..

Benefits to EMRT Members

- ❑ Active role in helping others and protecting company assets.
 - ❑ Top notch training, facilities, and personnel.
 - ❑ Certification that can be maintain throughout their career.
 - ❑ Motivation to maintain high level of fitness.
 - ❑ Personal development and growth.
-